

COUNCIL ORDERS HOSPITAL SEWER

No Remonstrances Filed at Special Meeting Against New Drain as Was Proposed.

WILL RECEIVE BIDS ON WORK

City Engineer Reported That Sewer Would Cost About Twenty Cents Per Foot.

The city council met in special session Monday evening to hear remonstrances against the construction of a sewer on Bruce street from Poplar to the large sewer on Pine street. The drain was necessary for the accommodation of the new hospital and the resolution providing for its construction was adopted several weeks ago. No objections were filed by the property owners, and the sewer was ordered.

There has been some discussion as to the kind of a sewer which should be constructed. When the matter was first brought before the council, some of the members thought that it should be a private drain and the entire expense paid by the property owners. When the question came up for reconsideration it was voted to build a local sewer, and that the city should pay for the alleys and intersections.

The city engineer reported he had made an estimate of the cost and found that it would cost about 20 or 21 cents per foot. This would mean that a property owner having a frontage of fifty feet will be required to pay about $10 for the sewer.

Council ordered that all proposals for bids be published and set the date for opening the estimates as October 5th, at 7:30 p. m. No bids can be received after 10:50 a. m. October 5th.

The council while in session approved the plan of lighting the city park, which was suggested by the light committee. A new light was ordered placed at the end of Indianapolis avenue, near the factory of the Seymour Chair Company.

A light was also ordered on North Poplar between Sixth and Seventh streets.

There were several complaints filed that the branches on certain trees on South Walnut street were too low and the marshal was instructed to inform the owners to trim the same. A general order was given that all such trees in the city should be given immediate attention.

In the absence of Mayor Allen Swope, Councilman Misch presided at the meeting.

DIED.

BURBRINK.—William Burbrink, of near Peter's Switch, died suddenly Tuesday morning of heart trouble. He was about sixty-eight years of age. The deceased had been in declining health for about two weeks. He was well known and had a large acquaintance. He is survived by a widow and seven children, four sons and three daughters.

The funeral services held Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the family home, and 2:30 from the Lutheran church at Jonesville. Rev. Kaiser will conduct the services. Burial at Jonesville cemetery.

UNSUCCESSFUL EFFORT

B. & O. S-W. Unable to Settle Strike at Washington.

One more effort to end the strike of the B. & O. S-W. Southwestern machinists of Washington has failed. On the call of the railroad, a committee of the machinists met with John Hair, superintendent of the motive power of the railway, at the Hyatt hotel Friday afternoon, but it was stated after the end of the conference that the strike was no nearer an adjustment than before the meeting.

It is understood that the terms offered the strikers to resume work were practically as heretofore made them, and of course unsatisfactory to the men who are out. It was thought by outsiders that the fact that the call for the conference was issued by the railroad meant that new concessions would be made the strikers and there was considerable expectation that the conference would result in a settlement of the strike.

It is said that there are fewer than fifty of more than a hundred men who responded to the strike order May 2 remaining to the city and many of these men are making arrangements to leave the city to work elsewhere. There is a demand for union machinists in all parts of the country and those of the strikers who desire work away from Washington are having no difficulty in securing it.

Prior to the issuance of the temporary injunction against the strikers, it was a rare sight to see any of the strikebreakers up town unless accompanied by guards. Now they are coming up town daily and those who are married are moving into homes in various residence parts of the city.—Washington Herald.

WARM GREETING GIVEN WATSON

At the Republican County Convention at Brownstown Monday Afternoon.

STIRRING REPUBLICAN SPEECH

Urged Republicans to be Loyal to Tickets—Praise for Republican Administration and Laws.

Hon. James E. Watson, who has many friends in this county, was warmly received at the Brownstown convention Monday and made a stirring address.

He spoke plainly to Republicans of the need of getting together for a united and vigorous fight. The Maine election emphasized the necessity and he believed would have the effect of arousing the party for the contest. He believed as strongly as ever in Republican principles and while there might be differences in the party on some questions all stood on the same platform and he urged loyalty to the state legislature and other tickets. He spoke of the splendid record of the party during the fifty years it had been almost continuously in power. The power, prestige, and prosperity we enjoy was due to the application of Republican principles.

He praised the administration of President Taft and said the promises and pledges of two years ago had been redeemed. He defended the tariff bill and expressed his belief it was the best tariff bill that had ever been enacted, though he recognized that it was not satisfactory in every respect. That owing to diversified interests the framing of a tariff bill was a difficult work.

He expressed himself in favor of a tariff commission, that the facts it would gather would help in the framing of a scientific bill.

Speaking of Democratic purpose to charge cost of high living to the tariff, he compared conditions under Republican tariff laws and the Wilson-Gorman law. Which is better, low prices and poverty or high prices, prosperity and the money with which to buy.

He contended that the trusts were not the creatures of the tariff and the way to reach the bad ones was to assail them directly by law and not through the tariff which would endanger prosperity.

He called attention to the various strong laws all enacted by Republicans for the regulation of big corporations. In closing he paid Judge Montgomery a high tribute.

Rev. J. M. Baxter, formerly of this city, passed through here this morning on his way to Evansville to attend the conference of the Methodist church. He has been preaching at Indianapolis the past year.

Rev. Mr. Jackson and family left today for their home in New London. He held a successful meeting in the Spraytown tabernacle.

W. P. Masters and C. D. Billings, of this city, and Adam Heller of Brownstown will leave this evening to attend the Presbytery at Jeffersonville.

BLISH MILLING COMPANY

Wins Big Suit in Federal Court in Alabama.

Jos. Rottman, W. F. Peter, Jr. and T. S. Blish have returned from a trip to Birmingham, Ala., where they went in the interest of the Blish Milling Co. who had a suit at law in the Federal Court in Alabama against a large baking concern of Alabama. The issue was a defaulted flour contract on the part of the Bisenit Company who on account of the severe decline in values last spring sought to get out of a contract they made with the Blish Milling Company some months previous when prices were much higher. The case was tried in Birmingham before Judge Grubb, of the U. S. court, on Friday and Saturday of last week, and the jury remained out less than one hour, bringing in a verdict for the plaintiff. Damages were awarded the Blish Milling Co. in the sum of $1200.00.

The Blish Milling Co. was represented by Attorney W. F. Peter, Jr. of this city and London & Fitts, Attorneys, of Birmingham, Ala.

STRONG INDOERSEMENT

Given Senator Beveridge at North Vernon... Resolutions in Full.

Senator Beveridge was given a very strong indorsement in the resolutions adopted by the North Vernon Congressional convention. The resolutions in full were as follows:

"We, the republicans of the Fourth congressional district, in convention assembled, most earnestly declare our confidence in and our allegiance to William Howard Taft and the national administration.

"President Taft is wise, prudent and conservative. He stands for the supremacy of the law and the integrity of the courts. He has succeeded in causing to be enacted into law more important measures in the same length of time than any president in our history, and we predict that his administration will mark a most prosperous and progressive era in the nation's development.

"We believe in a protective tariff, measured by the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad. This is fair to American manufacturers; less than this is unjust to American laborers; more is unjust to American consumers. That difference should be ascertained with the utmost speed and effective legislation enacted accordingly. We demand the creation of a permanent, genuine, non-partisan tariff commission, with powers and definite duties fixed in the law itself, and we most heartily approve the appropriation made by congress to enable the president of the United States to thoroughly inquire into industrial conditions at home and abroad.

"We favor just and liberal pensions to all deserving soldiers and to the widows and orphans of those who are dead. Every general pension law now on the statute books was placed there by a republican congress. We believe the time has come for the enactment of what is known as a "Dollar a Day" pension law for the relief of the necessities of honorably discharged civil war veterans.

"The state republican ticket is composed of clean, able and conscientious gentlemen, men of character and ability, with a heart and purpose to loyally care for the state and its great interests. Our state ticket deserves and will receive our enthusiastic support at the polls.

"We congratulate the republicans of Indiana upon having as their leader in the coming campaign a man of the people; a man who commands the absolute confidence of all citizens, regardless of party; a man who not only stands for the people's rights, but a man who votes as he fights. For almost twelve years he has honored his state and the nation, and we most earnestly indorse his splendid record during all the years that he has so honestly and courageously served the people.

"The republicans of the Fourth Congressional district stand as a unit in demanding that the man who shall succeed himself in the senate of the United States is that distinguished leader, our present senator, the Honorable Albert J. Beveridge."

THE COLONEL IS ASKING FOR AID

Wants Taft to Help Him Out
In New York State.

TAFT HAD NOTHING TO ADD

When the Colonel Journeyed Across the Sound to New Haven to Take Counsel With the President, the Latter Told Him Plainly That He Would Not Mix Up Further in the New York Situation.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 20.—Colonel Roosevelt came here to see President Taft and seek aid in his fight against the New York bosses. Mr. Taft had come here to attend a meeting of the Yale corporation. The colonel made no specific request for action on President Taft's part, but it was apparent that he and his friends sought the conference for the moral effect that it would have in the state contest. The president made it clear to Roosevelt that he is in sympathy with his fight against the bosses, but he also told the colonel plainly that he would not mix up further in the New York situation. He told Roosevelt that he would stand squarely on the letter which he had written to Lloyd C. Griscom soon after the meeting of the Republican committee in New York city. Later Mr. Taft told the reporters that in his opinion his sympathy with the Roosevelt forces was clearly shown in his letter.

Although Mr. Roosevelt's supporters who attended the conference continued to say that the bosses would be outvoted in the Saratoga convention, the impression prevailed that Colonel Roosevelt and Griscom now find themselves in a mighty tight hole and that they had turned to the meeting with Taft as a possible means of saving the day. Mr. Roosevelt's followers professed to be entirely satisfied with the outcome of the meeting with Mr. Taft.

The reiteration by President Taft of the sentiments expressed in the Griscom letter was not, however, the only important development that followed the conference. It is certain that the Taft administration will be indorsed in its entirety by the Saratoga convention, even if the Roosevelt forces are in control. However, there will be no indorsement of President Taft for re-nomination in 1912. The omission of such an indorsement will be in conformity to the president's own desire. This will leave the field open, so far as New York state is concerned, between him and the colonel for the Republican nomination of 1912, if Roosevelt has any thought of trying for it.

The Taft-Roosevelt conference was devoted almost entirely to the New York situation. None of the acts of the administration which were supposed to be sore points was mentioned. In short, so far as the personal relations of Mr. Taft and Colonel Roosevelt are concerned, they remain, it is said, practically on the same basis as they were before the meeting.

Colonel Roosevelt came to get Mr. Taft's aid in the New York situation, and Mr. Taft sat pat. That sums up the situation.

HE HELD ALOOF

Cincinnati Councilman Refuses to Vote
Welcome to the President.

Cincinnati, Sept. 20.—Councilman Hubbard Reynolds refused at the meeting of the council to vote for a resolution extending a formal welcome to President Taft on the occasion of his visit to Cincinnati today. The cause of Reynolds' objection was a clause in the resolution stating that the citizens of Cincinnati "honor and love" the president.

"While I honor President Taft and welcome him as president, I do not love him and refuse to be a hypocrite and say that I do," said Reynolds. The resolution was passed despite his protest.

WRECKED SALOONS

Mysterious Bomb Thrower Again Gets Busy at Chicago.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—The gambling war which has caused the wrecking of thousands of dollars worth of property and injury to more than twenty persons during the past two years, was renewed in Chicago last night when two places were wrecked by bombs. That no one was killed in either is regarded as marvelous.

One of the bombs was exploded in the rear of Frieberg's notorious dance hall and saloon, located on Twenty-second street, in the heart of the levee. While the police and fire department were responding another bomb wrecked a saloon at Sixty-third street and Cottage Grove avenue.

It Preyed on His Mind.

Marion, Ind., Sept. 20.—Marcus Nesbitt, aged forty-seven, a farmer living near Swayzee, committed suicide by taking poison. About twelve years ago Nesbitt shot and killed James Stillwell, a saloon keeper of Swayzee, and although acquitted of the charge of murder on the theory of self-defense, the thought of having killed Stillwell is said to have preyed on Nesbitt's mind.

NEGRO HELD FOR THE MURDER OF HILLER

Chicago Railroad Man Slain By Burglar.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—William Jones, a negro arrested on suspicion of slaying Clarence D. Hiller, chief clerk at the Rock Island freight depot, in his home early yesterday morning, was identified by the dead man's daughter, Clarice, as her father's murderer.

Hiller leaped from his bed as he heard screams from the bedroom of his daughter Clarice, eighteen years old. Taking a revolver from a drawer and followed by his wife, he rushed toward the rear of the house. In the hallway he encountered the negro. The latter saw Hiller at the same moment, and before Hiller could raise his weapon the burglar leaped at him. A fierce struggle followed, both men seeking to shoot the other. Terrified Mrs. Hiller sought to aid her husband and was joined by Clarice and Florence Hiller, all three of whom were screaming.

The robber during the struggle forced the battle toward the head of the stairway. Mrs. Hiller screamed to her husband to look out. It was too late, and the next moment the negro and Hiller, each holding onto the other with a grip of death, rolled down the stairs to the bottom. The mother and daughters watched the struggle from above.

The powerful negro was too much for Hiller. The latter weakened and finally his hold was broken. The negro sprang to his feet and fired his revolver. Hiller fell dead at the foot of the stairway. The next moment the murderer leaped through an open window to the front lawn and escaped.

GOING TO LOOK INTO OUR NAVY

Prince Tsai Hsun Arrives At San Francisco.

HAD TO GO TO BED AT ONCE

President of the Chinese Naval Board Who Comes Here to Visit Shipbuilding Plants and to Convey His Emperor's Good Will to America, Was Taken Ill on Board Ship and Is Down With Incipient Pneumonia.

San Francisco, Sept. 20.—When Prince Tsai Hsun arrived on the steamship Manchuria he was given a rousing reception which might have warmed his heart had he not been suffering from incipient pneumonia, which compelled him to ride in a closed carriage in the parade through the streets and go to bed as soon as the procession reached his hotel. As he is a big man of full habit, the doctors fear that the results of pneumonia may be serious.

The prince caught a severe cold on the steamer, and it was increased by the trying weather. His suite fear that the voyage has proved too much for his strength and that he may be detained here by illness.

Prince Tsai is a fine-looking Chinaman, and he wears a great globular ruby half as large as an egg, which is the distinctive mark of Chinese royalty. He speaks no English. He is accompanied by his secretary, Chow, under secretary of state, who speaks English fluently, and by the ranking admiral of the Chinese navy, five naval experts and by a retinue of Chinese nobles and dignitaries. Many of the party wear the peacock feather, and all are marked as nobles by coral buttons on their hats.

Secretary Chow said: "The prince has come to this country to convey the good will of the emperor and the Chinese people to Mr. Taft and to the Americans. Incidentally he will visit the shipbuilding plants of this country. As president of the naval board he is interested in marine construction." Secretary Chow denied unqualifiedly that the prince was here to place orders for battleships.

THE LORIMER CASE

Committee of Fellow Senators Now Investigating Bribery Charges.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—Six United States senators who are to hear testimony in the Lorimer case have arrived in Chicago and opened sessions today in the Congress hotel. They are: Chairman, Julius C. Burrows, Michigan; Robert J. Gamble, South Dakota; W. B. Heyburn, Idaho; James E. Frazier, Tenn.; Thomas H. Paynter, Kentucky; Joseph F. Johnston, Alabama. The first three are Republicans, the last three Democrats. The seventh member, Morgan G. Bulkeley, a Republican, is expected to reach here today.

Senator Heyburn said: "This commission constitutes the highest court in the land. There is not such an autocratic body in America; not that we are going to be so very autocratic. The testimony will be mostly oral—we may receive affidavits, however. We will not be hampered by the formalities that hamper courts. At our first executive meeting we will decide on the point of allowing counsel to represent Senator Lorimer. He will have to accept whatever the committee offers him. He can't appeal. The sessions will be open—all except the executive meetings.

Social Climbers

A Mother and Daughter
Got There In the End

By MILLARD MALTBY.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

A stagecoach lumbered up a zigzag road in the Rocky mountains. On the outside seat behind the driver sat a gentleman whose eminently respectable traveling suit and his clean cut features indicated that he was to the manner born. Beside him sat a young man in the costume of the country. His skirt was flannel; his hat was a sombrero.

On the next seat back sat a lady, the aristocratic gentleman's wife, and beside her a girl of nineteen, their daughter. The man in the sombrero was telling them about the mountains and its people and pointing out the more prominent peaks, to which the travelers listened with great interest.

The sun was hot, the pace was slow, and the two combined tended to make the driver drowsy. When the coach reached an eminence and started down an incline, instead of being wide awake to the dangers of mountain travel, he was nodding. He not only failed to put on the brake, but dropped the reins. He was awakened by the shouts of the passengers behind him, who saw a terrible death staring them in the face. The horses, unchecked, started down the slope and were soon going at a breakneck pace.

The driver basely abandoned his post and, putting his foot on the iron step beside him, swung himself to the ground. The young man who had been pointing out objects of interest let himself down over the footboard on to the tongue, gathered up the reins, quickly remounted to the box, put on the brake and managed to reduce the pace sufficiently to enable the coach to turn a curve without going over a precipice. Then after a further short descent he brought the horses to a standstill. The first sensation that came to him after it was all over was feeling the arms of the aristocratic gentleman about his neck.

One day a couple of years after this episode Mrs. Murphy and her daughter, while bowling along Ocean avenue at Newport, received a terrible shock. "Oh, heavens, mother, there's Barton Keith! Look the other way, quick!"

Miss Murphy, pretending to see something to which she desired to call her mother's attention, pointed in the opposite direction from the young man, the carriage rolled by, and the women began to discuss the situation.

"What in the world could have brought him here?" exclaimed the mother.

"I would as soon have expected to see a Mississippi pilot."

"Bart has been a stage driver."

"He'll tell everybody here all about our antecedents."

"He won't know any one to tell."

"It seems hard to cut him after that affair you had with him."

"There have been changes since then. At that time father was building his little branch railroad; he hadn't got on to the main line."

"Well, I don't think there's much danger, considering that he can't have any entree here. Heaven knows what a time we've had to even get in on the outer circle. How can Bart Keith with no money get in at all?"

"He may be prosperous; he's well enough dressed."

That night there was a grand function at one of the "cottages," and the next morning Mary Murphy ran to her mother with a newspaper in her hand and her eyes wide open.

"For land's sake, mother, listen to this: 'Among those present at Mrs. Atherton's last night was Mr. Barton Keith.'"

"You don't mean it!"

"How in the name of conscience do you suppose he got in there?"

"I can't imagine. I know we couldn't get a bid."

"He must have a pull somewhere."

"Your father had a pull, but it didn't work. He offered Peter Jones a tip on the stock of our road if he'd get him an invitation to the Athertons'. But Pete said they were of the old New York blue blood and rich besides. These people who have both blood and money are the hardest of all to move."

"Oho! Here's the explanation!" and she read a social item:

Mr. Barton Keith is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Forbes.

"Oh, my goodness gracious," exclaimed the mother, "how in the world did he ever get in with them?"

There was a silence between the two which Mary ended by saying:

"Mother, we've gone and done it."

"So we have."

"We must find a way to take a back-track."

"So we must."

"But we're entirely ignorant of the key to the position."

"What do you mean by that?"

"We don't know what reason the Forbes have for taking in Bart."

"Do you suppose they know what he's been?"

"Of course they do. Bart couldn't keep it if he wished. That's the singular part of it. The Forbes have been prominent in New York and Newport society for a hundred years. But one thing I have noticed in these old families—they're more independent about whom they take up than any other people. I can't imagine those Perkinses who made their money in fertilizing material having anything to do with Bart Keith. You know how they snubbed us."

"Yes, indeed I do, and I'm waiting for the time to come when I can get even with them."

"But, mother, how are we to fix it up with Bart?"

"I don't know, Mame, unless you have the same power you used to have over him."

Mame cast a glance in a mirror. Art had done a great deal for her since she waited on the railroad men her mother fed in their days of poverty. Nothing that money could buy was now denied her. But she knew Bart Keith well. He had loved her in calico, and to love her in costly fabrics must excite an entirely new sensation. Besides, he was in the swim at Newport, where he would meet the finest costumes in America, to say nothing of the women they incased. To make matters worse, she had cut him.

"Mother," she said, "I believe I'll write him a line saying I've heard of his being in Newport and telling him he's here. That'll look as if we hadn't seen him on the avenue."

"Do you think he'd tumble to it?"

The girl pondered awhile, then admitted that she knew very well he would; their eyes had met and there had been a mutual recognition. She dare not write the note.

But one morning she received a note from Keith. He told her that, having heard she was at Newport, he had come on from the west to find her. But time had made great changes for both of them and he did not doubt she was following a course which seemed inviting to her in her new sphere. He shrank from parting with her without letting her know that he had kept the boyish promises made years ago. He refrained from mentioning the cut she had given him, but it was evident it was this that had turned him from her. He closed his epistle with the word "farewell," and she knew that he had passed beyond recall.

For a time the Murphys heard that Keith was being introduced under the wing of the Forbes. Then they began to hear his name mentioned among the people and in the society notes independently of his introducers, and it was not long before they learned that which travels on the wings of the wind. Keith was rich. He had become interested in certain western speculations with Mr. Forbes and the two had made money together. Then came a rumor that Keith was to marry Miss Alice Forbes.

Up to this time the Murphys had merely wondered. Now they were astonished. And over Mary Murphy came a wave of regret. It was not for the loss of Barton Keith's wealth or position; it was for Keith himself. The prize they sought for and for which she had snubbed the lover of her young girlhood every day seemed further from her grasp. Despite their millions, the Murphys found it impossible to effect an entrance into Newport society. Mary had become accustomed to wealth, and it failed to satisfy her. She was hungry for the boyish love that had been hers in poverty, but she had thrown it away.

The report that Keith was to marry Miss Alice Forbes proved true. When the engagement was formally announced the Murphys read in the society columns of a New York newspaper a story concerning the contracting parties that gave them the key to the situation. It told how Mr. and Mrs. Forbes and their daughter were traveling in the Rocky mountains, how a stage driver fell asleep, how a young man who had been formerly a handler of the ribbons saved the passengers from death, how Mr. Forbes had taken him up and enabled him to make a fortune. But the story did not tell the most important feature that had led to the union—a young girl seeing an act of cool bravery on the part of a young man.

The wedding of Barton Keith and Alice Forbes was not celebrated with that splendor usual to nuptials in the fashionable world. It was said that this was in deference to the wishes of the groom, who bore the reputation of being an extremely modest man. He devoted himself to business, his only recreation being driving four-in-hands, and this was supposed to be in memory of experiences of former days.

"Mother," said Mary Murphy one day, "I have a plan."

"What is it, Mame?"

"We can't break through the shell of this Newport egg. We must go elsewhere."

"Where shall we go?"

"To London."

"Good gracious, daughter! If we can't succeed here, how can we do so among the British nobility?"

"Others who have failed here have succeeded there. Leave it to me. Money, dear mother, is the power that opens doors wherever money is needed. These British nobles are getting poor. Our people are getting rich. Many here have always been rich, and some care nothing about becoming richer. In England commoners have been getting rich, while the nobles have been getting poor. Noblemen would prefer to marry an American to a commoner of their own country, there being no titles here. I shall go to London, marry a title and come back here for just long enough to snub those who have snubbed us."

Two years later Mary Murphy returned to Newport as the countess of Munkennon. Her advent was heralded, and when she arrived invitations were piled on her table. Before looking for these she intended to accept she picked out those from certain people who had snubbed her as Miss Murphy and sent immediate "regrets."

Her Auto Ride

The Best Laid Plans Go Awry.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Annabelle Dayton in her smart little motorcar paused at the summit of the hill and drew a sharp breath of appreciation. A line of distant blue indicated the sea. In the foreground were green clad slopes running down to snowy beaches. The roofs of the village pointed up among the trees, and a church spire gleamed like fire. There were white sails beyond and the black drift of smoke from a passing steamer.

"This is lots better than going to Aunt Edith's poky musicale," sighed Annabelle mutinously. "Just fancy spending this glorious afternoon in a lighted drawing room listening to the great Alvan Eldred, 'master of the violin,' and being disillusioned by long hair, greasy coat collar and a pervading presence of garlic!" Annabelle's dainty nose sniffed scornfully at her imaginary portrait of the great violinist of whom her aunt had raved for weeks.

"I'm going down, down to the very edge of the sea."

As the machine sped downward Annabelle was suddenly conscious that something was wrong. The brakes did not respond to her frantic pressure, the levers grated harshly without effect, and there was an unfamiliar grunting sound from beneath her feet.

She had been down this same hill many times before, slowly, cautiously. She knew that from the foot of the hill the street ran down to the water's edge, ending at the broad dock where the boats landed.

Nothing could stop her speed unless the color left her cheeks as she realized the almost certain death that confronted her. Her lips set in a straight line, and her eyes shone steadily. If one had to meet death at the close of a lovely August day when—why, one might as well meet it bravely.

Faster she went, her eyes, dark with dread, fixed on a wide opening on the right. Flanked by stone pillars, it seemed to mark the entrance to some estate. The few pedestrians turned and watched her flight with disapproval; a constable held up a warning hand; a wagon scuttled into the sidewalk to avoid her coming.

Annabelle turned the steering wheel and a sigh of relief fluttered from her lips as the machine responded, but there was no lessening of the mad speed. Wildly it tore through the open gateway, ground into the hard packed earth of the drive, skidded along a muddy spot under the trees, left the drive and pounded along soft green turf, miraculously avoiding tree trunks, making straight for the large brown house set in the midst of the grounds.

Another twist of the wheel and the house seemed to glide past. Before her was a distant blur of gorgeous colors—a flower garden in the midst of which was a summer house. To the left was a turf bank. Her head dropped on her hands that clutched the wheel, and she closed her eyes and prayed.

There was a low shout beside her; the machine jolted under additional weight; a pair of strong hands gripped the wheel from hers; there was the pressure of brakes; the motor slowed suddenly, bumped into some obstruction and then bounded back to a standstill.

"It's all over now," said a kindly voice.

Annabelle opened her eyes and looked fearfully forth on the summer house still creaking from the force of encounter, on the crushed flowers she had moved down and lastly into the countenance of a man who sat beside her in the car.

It was then that Annabelle realized that she was holding the stranger in a frantic embrace, her hands tightly clasped about his neck, her fair head perilously near his broad shoulder.

"I beg your pardon!" Annabelle's face turned to deepest rose as she hastily withdrew from him, but her hair had caught in a button of his coat, holding it firmly by one long golden strand.

"Just a moment. There—I don't want to hurt you. It's off now." He spoke in a matter of fact tone as if he was in the habit of ensnaring lovely maidens with coat buttons every day of his life. "I'm afraid you are pretty well shaken up with your ride. You had a narrow escape." He had alighted and helped Annabelle to the ground.

She leaned weakly against the summer house. "You must have saved my life. Did you—did you really leap on the step as I passed?" She was beginning to realize what had happened. He nodded carelessly. "It was easy enough. You see, one gets practice in that sort of thing chasing the street cars." Then, observing her with concern in his gray eyes, he went on: "Come and sit down in the summer house; you must be pretty well knocked under with the strain. After you have had a cordial perhaps you may feel able to tell how it happened that you invaded my flower garden."

He smiled pleasantly down on her as he led the way into the rose covered arbor and drew forward a deep wicker chair for this unexpected guest, who sank into it with a little sigh of relief. "I will send my housekeeper, Mrs. Larrup, to you; she may be of assistance."

Annabelle had time to rearrange her tumbled hair, blushing at the recollection of its episode with the coat button, before her host returned, tray in hand.

"Mrs. Larrup has disappeared, and it seems to be the maid's half holiday, so you must be satisfied with my humble services. Here are currant wine and some biscuits and a bottle of eau de cologne. Isn't that what ladies use when they are upset?" He placed the tray handily at her elbow.

"Thanks to you, I wasn't upset," returned Annabelle merrily. She sniffed at the cut glass bottle more in gratitude for his thoughtfulness than because she needed its pungent aroma. "Thank you. I am afraid I've made you lots of trouble and ruined your garden. I hope you will allow me to have it put in order again." She sipped the wine he poured for her and looked up at him from her dark blue eyes, frankly boyish in their direct glance.

"Really, you've given old Jackson something to do. He's been eating his head off lately and grumbling because I wouldn't let him dig up some of the beds and set out other plants. There he is now among the hollyhocks. See the grin on his face? He's tickled to death over it."

The man leaned against the doorpost and looked out into the garden, where an old negro was hobbling among the torn beds, a broad smile about his toothless lips.

"I say, Jackson, please ask Pierre to come here and get this car out into the drive." He turned to Annabelle, and his glance lingered long on her face, sweetly serious in the pale green light of the arbor. "I think my man can put your car right. There seems to be nothing serious the matter with it—probably some small matter of adjustment."

While the chauffeur tinkered over the car Annabelle related the story of her ride. She omitted nothing, not even the fact that she had deliberately run away from her aunt's musicale and the great violinist nor her terror at the last when her car sped down the hill.

The man listened without interruption. He smiled when she mentioned Alvan Eldred, and he winced when she described the terrible ride down the hill. When she had finished he told her that he had been sitting in the arbor and had seen her approach across the turf—had raced to meet her. It was nothing at all.

"So you did not want to see Alvan Eldred," he said a little later. "Have you ever heard him play?"

"Once," admitted Annabelle, "and it was so heavenly it made me cry. There was a big crowd, and I couldn't see him, and I didn't want to. I know what they look like, and I am always disillusioned after I see them, some are so—so grubby, you know. This time he played an old thing, the intermezzo from 'Cavalleria,' you know, and I've wanted to hear it again just as he played it, only—"

"You're afraid of the garlic and the greasy coat collar, eh?" He was smiling down at her in the friendliest sort of way.

"I know you think I'm horrid about it and not a bit artistic, but—"

"I don't like garlic myself," he confessed cheerfully. "As for questionable coat collars—ugh! Nevertheless, I'm afraid you do Eldred an injustice. He's an American, you know."

"You see how narrow and prejudiced and silly I am," said Annabelle, rising and moving toward the door. "I never even knew that. I thought he was a Pole—or something. It is growing late, and your man seems to have fixed my car."

"I'm going with you—with your permission—to see that you reach home safely. Pierre can follow with my car and bring me home. You have told me your name, but I have not yet introduced myself. Wait a moment, please; do not turn your head."

With a slight bow he left her standing in the doorway, her back to the interior of the arbor. He passed inside, and she heard a slight rattle, a whining twang as a string tightened, and then the strains of the intermezzo trembled on the air—played as only a master could play it—as Alvan Eldred had never played it before.

Annabelle stood spellbound, her blue eyes like stars, her red lips parted, wave after wave of rose color flushing her startled face. Before he had finished she had turned and was facing him, inspiring him to greater effort, and there passed between them at the moment a great understanding.

When he had finished Annabelle pressed her hands against her eyes. "I feel as if I had always been asleep—as though I had just awakened," she said softly.

He made no reply. Quietly he put away the violin which had wrought this wonderful thing for him, and silently they entered the little car which had brought Annabelle so strangely into the garden.

At home he smiled down at her. "I may come again?"

"Yes, indeed."

"Garlic? Long hair?" His hand brushed his cropped head.

"I don't mind, really," blushed Annabelle, with starry eyes.

His tone of banter changed to one of tender gravity. To Annabelle it sounded like the deeper notes of his violin. "You ran away from me, and yet we met after all. Are you glad? I am!" Without waiting for answer he jumped into his waiting car and with a last backward look was gone.

Annabelle smiled mysteriously as he vanished in a cloud of dust. "And I'm glad, too—glad, glad!" Then with a swift, graceful movement she bent down and kissed the steering wheel of the little automobile.

EVENING GOWNS FOR THE WOMAN WHO DOES NOT CONSIDER EXPENSE

UPPER:

Evening Gown of Black Satin.

LOWER:

Pale Blue Messaline Gown.

ALMOST worthy of the great days of French dressmaking—now, alas, departed—are the two beautiful evening gowns shown in the illustration. They represent the efforts of two of the leading designers of the capital of the world's modes and created sensations when they were first exhibited a short time ago. Of course the splendor of the materials and the high rank of the makers render these gowns expensive in the extreme, but the astute Frenchman knows that Mme. l'Americaine does not let so little a thing as money stand in her way when she wants a costume that pleases her. The lower costume shown in the cut is a most beautiful creation of messaline in a delicate pale blue. Gold and silver lace are employed to adorn the front panel and the flounce on the skirt, and the lace is bordered by a flower passementerie in the silver. The flowers are orchids. The effect is best described as "a dream of beauty."

The other gown is not less beautiful, but is in addition more strikingly attractive. The materials employed are black chiffon and Bulgarian bead embroidery, giving the costume almost the black and white effect that will be so popular in the fall and winter. Jet and pearls are also used to heighten the effect. As the picture shows, there is a long train. Another beautiful feature of this handsome gown is the short sleeves, draped to fall in the most graceful and flowing of lines. The sleeves are of white chiffon, accordion plaited, cut in on the inner seam so as to show the arm when that member is raised. The cap pieces of the embroidery, matching the drapery on the skirt, complete one of the best sleeves seen in this year's gowns. Nothing more handsome than this gown is to be found in the most fashionable shops.

AMANDA RIDDLE.

SCHOOL DANCING.

AMONG the latest devices for keeping the little girls in the big cities interested in their studies is the teaching to them of the folk dances of various nations. The plan has proved a great success in New York, where the little girls take naturally to the execution of the various figures.

The parents also show great interest in the teaching of the dances and do not grudge the little money needed to fit out their small daughters with the costumes characteristic of the various nations. The dance shown is a Scotch reel as danced with vigor and earnestness by a group of little girls in one of the New York summer schools. German and Italian dances and the terpsichorean exercises of other nations are taught by specially employed instructors.

New Hat For Theater Wear.

What to wear in the way of a theater hat has long been a problem to the average woman. Of course her chapeau must come off, and as a consequence her hair is apt to come down. An astute French milliner has solved the problem by inventing a hat made in two parts. The outer section is huge and stunningly trimmed, but it lifts off to leave on the hair a clever little Marie Stuart cap incrustated with beads and jewels. Some of these caps are made of sheer lace, and nothing daintier can be devised for the middle aged woman or the young girl, the difference between the ages being shown by the different ways in which the hat is made.

A scarf which can be changed into a neck, and vice versa, is another new wrinkle from Paris. This remarkable change is effected by snap hooks and eyes.

Progress In the New State.

Mrs. Mary A. Milbank of Bloomfield is the first woman to be elected a school director in New Mexico. Her election is the result of the opinion recently given by Attorney General Frank W. Clancy that women are eligible to the office.

NOW MADE PLAIN

Why Steve Fleming's Fellows Chose the Discretionary Part.

[Special Correspondence.]

Indianapolis, Sept. 29.—It is a whole lot easier now to see why Steve Fleming and his fore-thoughted henchmen in the Twelfth district refused to permit Democrats of Lagrange and Steuben counties to hold a joint convention the other day to nominate a legislative candidate. Since the legislative convention held at South Bend last Saturday, where the delegates fought over the resolutions and refused to endorse John W. Kern for United States senator, it is made plain that Steve Fleming's fellows chose the discretionary part when they turned over the nominating function to two trusty county chairmen, and sent the delegates home. If this policy had been followed in St. Joseph county, the Democrats might have avoided one of the hottest little fights seen in northern Indiana politics this year. But it seems the St. Joseph county boys lacked the astute and direct bossism of a Steve Fleming. They were afraid to dismiss the delegates. They were a little hesitant about robbing the people's representatives of their powers. They feared the consequences of taking on themselves the functions delegated by the rank and file to accredited delegates. So, being gathered together in convention, the Democrats naturally and almost inevitably involved themselves in a scrap.

In the early part of the campaign, State Chairman Stokes Jackson, of the Democratic organization, gave out an interview in which he said: "When two or more Democrats get together they feel like shouting." This correspondence went to some pains to set out the things various Democrats felt like shouting when they got together. It is time to amend what Mr. Jackson said. In view of events of recent date, Democrats feel like fighting as well as shouting when they get together. An eminent Democrat now nicely placed at the statehouse summed up the condition the other day when he said: "The trouble with us Democrats is that we start off all together for harmony, and then we beat the band, and go all right for several weeks, until the campaign really begins. Then we begin to imagine things, to differ on methods, to diverge on issues and to resent this or that leadership and this or that attempted dictation. Just when we ought to be going good, we begin to fight, and we fight right up to voting time. On the other hand Republicans start out fighting, and by the time the campaign is going right they have found middle ground and are shoulder to shoulder, pouring hot shot into our disordered ranks. This is mournful, but it is true."

But to get back to St. Joseph county, Senator Shively, Kern, and the strife of last Saturday. The Shively men had sworn by the great horn spoon they would not permit resolutions endorsing Kern for United States senator. The Kern people, on the other hand, to avoid trouble, broke ground, made a typical Kern crawfish surrender, and agreed not to present any resolutions of any kind. So under agreement of the "leaders" of both factions, the convention was to be pulled off without resolutions. Someone "spilled the beans." In fact the kitchen stove was kicked over. When all was moving easily, with the majesty of the steam roller, up bobbed a patriot, yanked a paper from the inside of his prince albert coat, and began to read. The bosses glanced at one another. The factions began to glare. Figuratively speaking, they were reaching for dornicks and fumbling of dirk handles. Faction began to gnash teeth at faction, and accusation mumbled against mumbled criminal. There was trouble. The resolutions were read to the finish without assassination being done. The paper called for an endorsement of Kern, Shively, Marshall and Barnhart. At least three of these propositions were as salt in Shively wounds. So when the thing went to debate and vote the resolutions were refused.

The funniest thing of all, however, is the statement of Myron King, secretary of the Democratic state committee, trying to explain the Battle of South Bend, and to show that where the bosses had agreed to muzzle the rank and file, the rank and file ought to put up its snout for the muzzle and say nothing one way or the other. King is serving supposedly in the absence of Joe Reiley, the mum and discreet Taggart henchman of past years. If King keeps up his talking, Taggart will find it necessary to put Reiley back on the job in person, as well as in fact. Reiley at least can keep his mouth shut when explanations are inadvisable.

The Evansville Press, a Democratic paper, has come out for the re-election of Senator Beveridge on the ground that Beveridge has made good, has served all the people ably, and so is entitled to consideration regardless of politics. The editorial in the Evansville paper, in the extreme southern end, and the repudiation of Kern in open convention at the extreme northern end, are two impressive and important political items of the day. Kern is to open his campaign at Evansville. The desertion of his cause by the Evansville Press comes at a significant time.

and is wholly dependent upon the resourcefulness of Hanly for information on this subject.

The qualities which the American people are so earnestly demanding in their public servants, and especially in their judicial officers, Hanly concedes to Judge Montgomery. The qualifications of our Supreme Judges is a matter of supreme importance to the people of the state. It is of minor consequence that a Judge may disagree with some of his associates on a legal question in a particular case, but it is important that he shall be capable, honest and fearless. The folly of Hanly's attack should be apparent to all thoughtful men.

THE COUNTY TICKET.

The Republican county ticket has been nominated and is now before the voters for their consideration. The candidates selected for the various offices are all well known in the county and by reason of their high characters, strict integrity and business qualifications, are well fitted for the positions for which they were selected.

The election of county officials is of great importance to every taxpayer, for such officers is left the trust and responsibility of expending the public moneys and the men who are elected should be competent, careful and trustworthy. The Republicans of Jackson county believe that greater economy should be exercised in all departments of the local government. The Republican county ticket stands upon a platform which opposes the waste of county funds and the candidates believe that with a more careful administration thousands of dollars of the people's money could be saved and the high tax rate reduced.

The Republicans mentioned in particular the deplorable condition of our free gravel roads. With a very few exceptions, the highways of the county are washed and rough and many of them are almost unfit for travel, yet an immense amount of money is levied each year for gravel road repairs. The Republicans believe that the county could derive greater benefit from the money appropriated for this purpose if it was used in a more careful economical manner.

The men upon the county ticket are interested in the welfare of their own county. They will give the public their best service and endeavor to conduct the affairs of the county in the best possible manner.

The enormous crowds at the state fair last week were significant of two facts, first the general prosperous condition of the farmers and second, their desire to become acquainted with the latest and most improved methods of conducting the farm so that the best results may be obtained. The state fair is attended by fewer people when farming is less profitable, as shown by the records of former years. And, this could hardly be otherwise as the fair is visited largely by farmers who have more money for such trips when their produce is selling at fair prices. It is realized to a greater degree than ever before that scientific farming pays big interest. At the state fair an effort is made to explain the various ways of farming which have been approved by leading and experienced agriculturists. The farmers recognize that this information is valuable and if for no other reason they are well paid for their time and expenditure of money in visiting the fair if they obtain a knowledge of these improved methods.

HANLY'S ATTACK.

J. Frank Hanly, in an address at Hartford City Sunday, charged that the liquor interests are attempting to pack the Supreme Court for the purpose of overthrowing the county local option law. His charge is, no doubt, the product of his fancy; but owing to the prominence he once attained, deserves notice. He intimated that Judge Oscar H. Montgomery will be the beneficiary of their favor, and therefore declares his opposition to the Judge's reelection. The attack grows out of the fact that Judge Montgomery disagreed with the immaculate Hanly as to the constitutional validity of the county option law in its present form. Hanly concedes that the Judge is an honorable and conscientious man, and that his opinion was announced in accord with his true convictions, but he cannot tolerate an officer who dares to disagree with his legal views respecting his own pet measure.

It is undeniable that any attempt of the liquor interests or any other interests to control or intimidate the Judges of our Supreme Court would be abhorrent to every sense of right, and detestable in the sight of honest men. An attempt to commit the judgment of a juror or judge, in advance, upon a question likely to come before him for decision is revolutionary and destructive of that impartiality which is the essential quality of our courts. Such an attempt by a layman might be forgiven under some circumstances, but would be inexcusable and utterly indefensible in a lawyer, sworn to support the constitution and the integrity of the courts. J. Frank Hanly, and not the liquor interests, did that precise thing. Before the state convention, he wrote certain candidates seeking nominations for Judge of the Supreme Court, demanding their legal opinion as to the constitutionality of the local option statute. This act indicates Hanly's conception of the qualifications of an aspirant for Judge of the Supreme Court.

Judge Montgomery assures us that he has no knowledge nor intimation of any movement on the part of the liquor interests to favor his candidacy. He has no relative, friend, or speaking acquaintance connected with the business in this state or elsewhere,

"What time is it?"

WANTED A REST THAT WILL NOT BE BROKEN

Husband of "A Circuit Rider's Wife" Takes Own Life.

Cartersville, Ga., Sept. 20.—Rev. Dr. Sundry H. Harris, husband of Mrs. Cora Harris, who wrote the story of "A Circuit Rider's Wife" recently published in the Saturday Evening Post, committed suicide at Pine Log, a health resort near this place. Dr. Harris, who held a responsible position with the Southern Methodist publishing house at Nashville, was at Pine Log for his health. He seemed despondent and went for a walk. When he did not return search was begun and he was found unconscious on the bank of a small stream with an empty bottle of morphine.

He was taken to the hotel and physicians called, but he died in a short time after being found. He left a note for his wife, stating that he was "tired" and intended to seek "rest that will not be broken." Dr. Harris, who was fifty-five years old, was a scholarly man and was for fifteen years professor of Greek in Emory college, Oxford, Ga. He was a graduate of Emory and took first honors in the class.

"The Circuit Rider's Wife," by Mrs. Harris, caused a sensation in church circles because it dealt with hardships undergone by a minister who does not play ecclesiastical politics. Dr. Harris's remains will be sent to Nashville for interment. Mrs. Harris and her daughter are in Nashville.

Myron W. Whitney, the famous bassist, is dead at his home at Sandwich, Mass., aged seventy-four.

LIKE FATHER LIKE SON UNTRUE SO FAR AS CALIFORNIA SEES

Recent Republican Primary Nominates Filius Hiram W. Johnson For Governor and Defeats Pater Grove L. For Legislature.

By J. A. EDGERTON.

THE insurgent movement has divided at least one family. In California Grove L. Johnson, who has been in congress and the legislature for eighteen or twenty years, is known as a standpatter of standpatters, yet this year he was defeated in the Republican primaries for renomination to the legislature. In the same election Hiram W. Johnson, his son, running as an insurgent, carried the Republican primaries for governor by a plurality so large the election boards are hardly through counting it yet.

Insurgency has been known to divide fathers-in-law and sons-in-law, but this is the first conspicuous instance in which it has estranged father and son. In Massachusetts no one would accuse Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of insurgency. They would as soon charge political heterodoxy against Eugene Hale or Nelson W. Aldrich. Yet the husband of Lodge's daughter, the Hon. Gussie Gardner, is one of the representatives that have been making life uneasy for Uncle Joe.

Anent the Hon. Nicholas Longworth, another representative who married the daughter of a great man, Theodore Roosevelt once remarked to Gardner. "Your father-in-law and my son-in-law do not approve of our radicalism."

Pinchot Claims Victory.

Roosevelt refused to mix in Johnson's fight for governor of California, but sent Gifford Pinchot, who joyously made insurgent speeches all over the state and seemingly regards the victory as a personal triumph. Well, it was a big enough victory to be divided up and still leave "glory enough for all." So if Pinchot wants a slice of it Johnson probably has no objections.

Rudolph Spreckels, Francis J. Heney and the Lincoln-Roosevelt league also claim some small share of the credit, since they first selected Johnson for the graft prosecutions and afterward made him the candidate. Pretty much everybody is happy over the result, so far as I can judge, except Grove L. Johnson, the Southern Pacific railroad and some of the people who wanted Heney removed from office because he ate with his knife.

It must be admitted that "sword swallowing" is a heinous offense, but the penalty should fit the crime. Firing a man out of a good paying office is going too far. That should be classed under the head of cruel and unusual punishment. The worst that can be hoped for a man who eats with his knife is that he should cut his mouth or swallow the knife by mistake. As a matter of fact, those San Francisco people did not care a hang whether Heney ate with his knife or with his fingers. What they really objected to was that he prosecuted the grafters. And right there is where Hiram Johnson came into the game.

Johnson an Orator.

Johnson had been practicing law in San Francisco and had arrived at the point where he was called a "leading lawyer." He was effective before a jury, especially in the line of pathos. When it came to getting the jury all worked up Hiram Johnson was there with the oratory. As for politics, he voted any way he pleased. His enemies said he registered at the primaries as a Republican, but usually voted the Democratic ticket. Anyway, he was independent and did not try to conceal it. Likewise he was against his father in politics and did not try to conceal that either. Then he was made deputy district attorney to help in the prosecution of Schmitz and Ruef, and it was the reputation there made that suggested him as the proper insurgent leader.

Again his foes say—what will foes not say in politics?—that he defended Dazell Brown, the bank wrecker, at about the same time that he was prosecuting graft. They also aver that he never really broke with his father at all. It might be difficult to convince Grove L. Johnson of that.

Where he is known the elder Johnson is called "foxy old Grove." In the legislature he has generally been regarded as a friend of the Southern Pacific. When he was in congress—he served but one term—his most conspicuous act was an attack on W. R. Hearst. The editor came back with a two or three page broadside in which he charged that Grove L. had once been indicted for forgery in New York state. That would have fanned the average statesman, but it never fazed Johnson.

Beaten For Renomination.

He arose to a question of personal privilege, admitted the charge, said he had never tried to conceal it, but had told his constituents all about the episode and actually compelled applause by recounting how he had lived down his early indiscretion. Not only so, but he went back to Sacramento and made a fight for a renomination. His son, Hiram, the identical Hiram now running for governor, was his campaign manager. But they were beaten. It is said that the son's opposition to the Southern Pacific began from that very day. However that may be, he became corporation counsel for the town, and his father went back to the legislature.

The mayor of Sacramento at that time was George Clark. At the end of his first term the machine turned down Clark, and he ran independently and was elected. Hiram Johnson had not a little to do with his victory. Then he induced Clark to become an independent candidate in the state and made a fight for him along lines similar to those on which he himself conducted his fight for governor in the recent campaign. Clark was disastrously defeated, however, and Hiram Johnson resigned his job and went to San Francisco.

There was at this time another brother, Albert. The two went into the practice of law together, but Albert died not long after the firm was organized. He was known as a brilliant man and was even more radical in his political opinions and hence more at variance with their father than Hiram himself.

When Father Meets Son.

One of the peculiar features of the present situation is that, while Grove L. Johnson failed to get the Republican nomination for the legislature, he did get the Prohibition nomination, receiving one vote. As there were no Prohibition candidates this entitles him to the nomination under the law. He says he will take it and make the fight. He also thought he had received twenty-eight votes in the Democratic column, thus tying his opponent. The statutory provision is that in the case of a tie vote the two candidates shall draw lots, and "foxy old Grove" was on hand for the drawing, but a recount shattered the dream. If he should chance to be elected as a Prohibitionist and his son becomes governor there would probably be an interesting aftermath to this political family feud.

For example, we can imagine Governor Johnson recommending a law to clip the wings of the Southern Pacific and Legislator Johnson fighting it tooth and nail. To prevent such a contingency we can be sure that the Hiram Johnson forces will leave no stone unturned to keep "foxy old Grove" out of the legislature. It looks like another case of "too much Johnson," so one of the Johnsons has to be eliminated, and the old man seems to be the goat. The prodigal son is reversed. Here it is the prodigal dad that is feeding on hushes, but he shows no signs of returning to his son's house, and there are no indications that he would be welcomed with a veal barbecue if he did return.

California Surprises Many.

The insurgent sweep in California was an eye opener to the country, as was that in Kansas and elsewhere. While the revolt on the coast did not result from the same causes as that farther east, it exhibited the same general trend. It carried through not only the Lincoln-Roosevelt league state ticket, but two candidates for congress.

In the popular or advisory vote for United States senator the result was uncomfortably close between John D. Works, the insurgent candidate, and A. G. Spaulding, the former baseball pitcher and manufacturer of athletic goods. The result on senatorship was complicated by the fact that the man who carries the largest number of legislative districts and not the one receiving the largest total vote is the one supposed to be chosen.

Spaulding lives at Point Loma and is a member of Katherine Tingley's the-sophical colony. He is the man who took the all America ball teams around the world. One of his pitchers in that tour was John K. Tener, now Republican candidate for governor of Pennsylvania. The insurgents claim that they will have a working majority in the legislature, and this may affect the senatorial situation.

Latest advices are that both Works and Spaulding claim the primary endorsement. Works having received the largest vote in the state, but Spaulding carrying a majority of the legislative districts.

The fight on governor is likewise complicated by the doubt as to how the regulars will vote in the November election. They assert that Hiram Johnson affronted President Taft, and some of them may vote against him on this score. The Democratic candidate is Theodore A. Bell, who was temporary chairman of the national convention at Denver.

At the last gubernatorial election in 1906 Bell was also the candidate and came within 8,299 votes of beating Gillett. Bell is a lawyer at Napa and was for one term a member of congress. This year he was the unanimous nominee for governor in the Democratic primaries. Will enough of the regular Republicans swing to Bell to give him the election? That is now the chief question in California politics.

Fight on Southern Pacific.

While Johnson will lose conservative Republicans, it is also probable that he will gain progressive Democrats. No intelligent forecast can be made of the result, however, without considering the chief factor in California politics. That factor is the Southern Pacific railroad. For years the Southern Pacific has ruled California. Johnson and his followers proclaim that they are going to drive it out of state politics, just as Theodore Roosevelt promises to drive all special interests out of national politics. This will necessarily force a realignment of parties.

How many votes can the Southern Pacific swing in a straight fight if it attempts to oppose Johnson in the coming election? Should it take an open stand will it not drive more to him than it draws from him? These are questions that only election day can answer. Yet on them depend the fate of the canvass and to a considerable degree the trend of future politics in California. If Johnson wins and carries out his pledge to end Southern Pacific domination it will mean a practical revolution of politics in the state.

California has been Republican for many years, Taft having carried it by 86,906 out of a total vote of less than 400,000 and Roosevelt having had a plurality of 115,822 out of a total vote of less than 350,000. The claim of Johnson's friends is that the Roosevelt following is with them in this fight.

Hiram W. Johnson is not unlike Roosevelt, although a younger man. He is almost as vigorous a campaigner, having covered 10,000 miles in the recent primary struggle. He likewise cleaned up Sacramento, as Roosevelt in years before had cleaned up New York city. The California insurgent leader is not afraid to speak out. His prosecution of graft and bossism in San Francisco and his exhortation of President Taft showed that. He boldly likens the present struggle in America to the conflict against privilege in the French revolution.

As to the other Johnson, it may be that there is paternal pride lurking away back in the corners of his heart over the triumphs of his son, but if so he makes no sign. Seemingly he is unrepentant and determined to be a prodigal dad to the end. Political husks are not a satisfying or a filling diet, and even these are growing scarce.

MORMONS TALK EMIGRATION.

May Leave Utah For Mexico to Practice Polygamy.

Hamilton Smith, a priest of the Mormon church, who participated in the close of a sale of 50,000 acres of land for the Mormons in the state of Coahuila, Mexico, is authority for the statement that President Diaz has assured the church that polygamy and all other practices of the church will be permitted without interference in Mexico.

Dr. Smith also states that his people will abandon Utah in the not far distant future and settle in Mexico, where they will not be prosecuted for their religion and its practices. He declares the United States has gone out of its way in passing unreasonable and unjust laws to deprive the Mormons of their rights.

The Mormons already own 65,000 acres of land and have a well established colony in Mexico adjoining the 50,000 acres just acquired and hold options on thousands of acres which extend to the Rio Grande on the east.

KIOTO IS "PARK OF WORLD."

Everything Beautiful in Former Capital of Japan.

Kioto, Japan, is spoken of as the "park of the world." Everything there is beautiful. It was formerly the capital of the empire and has a population of 382,000. Within the city limits are 878 Buddhist temples and eighty-two Shinto shrines. The principal products are pottery and porcelain, cut velvets, cloisonne wares, brocades and embroideries. The beauty of the products is significant of the beauty of the place.

GARMENTS FOR THE HOURS WHEN ONE "TAKES IT EASY"

HOWEVER it may be with party gowns and street suits, the kimono has no season. It claims the whole year for its own, whether the wintry winds blow outside of the comfortably heated home or the summer zephyrs make the garment a delight with the alriness and sense of ease which it imparts. But the kimono is not exempt from the iron-clad law which states that everything a woman wears is subject to the whims and vagaries and changes of fashion. Here in the picture are shown two of the "latest" kimonos. The one is a strikingly handsome model of china silk, having a black background plentifully covered with big bluests. It is trimmed with velvet ribbon of the same color as the flowers. The other kimono shown—and, by the way, these two garments were also called "matinees" by their designers—is made of pink silk, trimmed on the edge, at the waist and on the sleeves with bands of silk in a darker shade of pink. For the woman for whose complexion so much pink is not too trying this kimono supplies a very beautiful negligee.

OPINIONS OF "OUT OF THE ORDINARY" WOMEN.

Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald, wife of the mayor of Boston, says that individuality should be the essential feature of women's dress. Society women, adhering so closely to the styles, she says, often make themselves unconsciously ridiculous.

Speaking of the suffrage movement among college girls, Miss Jerle Ashley, president of the Collegiate Equal Suffrage club, said recently that in future the tactics will be more of the policy of insistence and less of the policy of persuasion.

Clara Barton says that in her work she never solicited a penny, and she is inclined to criticize that kind of charity which adopts the brass band style of procedure. She does not think it is the proper way in which to arouse the sympathy and interest of the people.

Mrs. Henry C. Dimock, who is working so hard for the George Washington memorial, is a sister of the late William C. Whitney. She declares that the George Washington memorial to be erected in Washington should be adapted to national and international societies. It is estimated that the cost will be $2,000,000.

Mrs. Ophelia M. Amigh is matron of the woman's industrial prison at Geneva, Ill. She believes that by surrounding the prisoners with an uplifting influence any latent good that is in them will be awakened. With most of her charges she has found that moral regeneration is possible, and by arousing their interest in music and other beautiful things it is possible to train the evil out of them.

Something About Sponges.

There are few things that are so carefully handled and that give so little satisfaction for this reason as bathing sponges. A large sponge is always a somewhat expensive item, and when it becomes odorous, as it sometimes does after a little use, one hesitates to throw it away at once, expecting to restore it. This is a very difficult matter to accomplish.

Repeated scaldings will often fail to make a sponge sweet and soft as it was originally. The best way to do is to take care of it at first. If the sponge is freed from soapsuds and hung where it will get dry each time after it is used it will not become sour. In order to do this wash the soap out with warm water after using it and rinse it in cold water. Squeeze it as dry as you can with the hands, but do not wring it, as that would break the fibers.

It is a good thing to dry sponges in summer in the bright sunshine. In winter they must be dried by artificial heat, and for this reason special care must be taken to rinse them clean after using them.

It is a great mistake to shut a sponge up in a close box, even though it may be one of solid silver. A sponge shut up in this way with the least dampness is sure to acquire an impure odor in time.

The best place to keep a sponge is on a hanging earthen tray or in an open basket of wire near the bathtub, where it can dry and is always convenient. There is a great difference in the quality of sponges. A good bathing sponge has rather coarse pores, but it is soft and strong in texture. The most expensive sponges, however, are the tiny ones, which have the very finest holes and a silken texture. They are used for washing little children and by surgeons.

TABLE SET FOR A "KAFFEE KLATCH"

NOW is the time, or nearly the time, for "after vacation" confidences—those pleasant stories of seashore and mountaintop and summer resort which women are fond of telling to one another. And one of the most pleasant places in which to tell them is around the afternoon tea table, with its bright and cheerful settings. Why not get one's friends together, for example, at a "kaffee klatch" to tell, if they are single, of the conquests they made in the moonlight or, if they are married, of the "perfectly delightful and interesting people" they met while they were away? The table setting shown in the illustration would be just the thing as a background for a pleasant gathering, with its silver coffee set in colonial design and its cups and saucers of pretty, dainty, fragile Dresden china. Coffee and the wholesome "filling" varieties of German cake are, of course, the standbys of the hostess at a "kaffee klatch," but other refreshments may be served as her fancy may dictate. The word "klatch" is German and means "gossip."

RAIN HANDICAP TO AERONAUTS

Had to Sacrifice Ballast in Order to Keep Up.

FLIGHT WAS DISAPPOINTING

Those of the Balloons That Went Up at Indianapolis Saturday Evening and Which Have Been Heard From Thus Far, Did Not Even Approach the Record Established in the Great Race Two Years Ago.

Indianapolis, Sept. 20.—According to dispatches from different sections of the east, the two contestants that still remain in the national championship balloon race are the Buckeye and the New York.

The America II., Alan R. Hawley, pilot, Augustus Post aid, New York, landed late yesterday afternoon at Warrington, W. Va. The Miss Sophia, William T. Assman pilot landed in Calhoun county, West Virginia. Heavy rains handicapped all the balloons and those which have landed thus far did not even approach the record established two years ago. The pilots said they encountered rains nearly all Saturday night, and they were compelled to sacrifice much of their ballast to remain in the air as long as they did.

The two balloons that are still unreported are the Buckeye, commanded by James Wade, jr., pilot, and A. J. Gorman, aid, of Cleveland, and the New York, with Clifford B. Harmon pilot and Captain T. S. Baldwin aid, of New York, aboard. The fliers were well scattered over the territory east and southeast of Pittsburgh.

TRIED TO SELL HIS CHILDREN

In Order, as He Said, "to Illustrate a Certain Point," Rev. Thomas G. Boord, a Pittsburg Preacher, Advised That He Would Put Two of His Children on the Auction Block, but He Didn't Get to Do It.

Pittsburg, Sept. 19.—There was near rioting at Circleville, Pa., near Irwin, Saturday evening, when Rev. Thomas G. Boord, pastor of the Wylie Avenue Baptist church of Pittsburg, after advertising that he would sell two of his five children to the highest bidder made an effort to auction the children off. The minister never got a chance to finish the sale, as 1,000 people protested and the minister was nearly mobbed. Nor were matters better Sunday morning, when Rev. Mr. Boord appeared in the pulpit, for he was subjected to many slurs from his congregation.

Late Saturday the following circulars were passed about Circleville, which is the home of Rev. Boord:

"Auction Tonight.—The undersigned will sell at public auction his two children as hereinafter described:

"One boy; seven years old, fair complexion, weighs forty-five pounds. Strong of body and mind. Has never been to school, but would make a competent newsboy and be able to earn good wages in three years. Will be great support to buyer in less than eight years.

"One girl, aged ten years, dark complexion, weighs fifty-three pounds. Has had four years' schooling. Was youngest pupil in her class. Can execute any household duties, such as plain sewing and cooking, dishwashing, etc. For a child's nurse cannot be excelled. Will be competent to keep an ordinary house in six years' time."

"Sale to take place corner Third and Main streets at 7:30 tonight. Terms and conditions of sale and reasons for selling made known before sale begins. Purchaser must be good moral person."

At the appointed time Rev. Boord appeared with the two children and made explanation that he had five children he was not able to support; that he wanted to sell two in order to keep the other three. Some persons in the crowd became abusive and Boord finally announced a postponement of the auction sale.

Later Boord, who is a Prohibition candidate for the legislature, declared it had been but a joke on his part, that he had intended to illustrate a certain point with the children as examples, but the crowd took him seriously and made trouble.

CHICAGO'S GROWTH

City by the Lake Has Almost Doubled Population Since 1890.

Washington, Sept. 19.—The population of Chicago is 2,185,283, an increase of 486,708, or 28.7 per cent, as compared with 1,698,575 in 1900, when the increase was 54.4 per cent as compared with 1890.

This announcement leaves Chicago ranking in population as the second city of the United States and the fourth in the world.

Chicago has almost doubled its population since 1890, when the figures were 1,099,850. Its increase in population during the last decade was not so great proportionately as that of New York, the rate of increase being 10 per cent less. New York is yet ahead of its closest rival by 2,581,550.

PLUCKY RANCHMAN

Three Bears Rushed Him, but He Successfully Stood His Ground.

Basin, Wyo., Sept. 19.—While Jesse Slaughter, a young ranchman, was cooking supper at his cattle camp in the mountains, three bears suddenly rushed out of the brush and charged him. He stunned one with a rock and with his pocketknife managed to reach its heart and fell it before the second bear reached him.

Number two rose up and struck at him. He held out the knife and slashed the bear's paw so badly that it turned and ran, followed by the third bear, while Slaughter pelted them with rocks. He brought in the pelt of the one he killed.

A Legal Wonder.

There was a prosecuting attorney in Texas whose methods were so dramatic and uniformly successful that he not only became the terror of evil-doers, but an object of admiration, especially among the negroes. Upon retirement from office he was at once much sought after by those charged with crime. The first two cases which he defended resulted in conviction, much to his chagrin. An old negro who had watched his prosecution in admiring wonder and looked on with equal interest when he conducted the defense accosted him just after his defeat and said: "Mars Earle, you sho' is a wonder. No matter which side you's on, they go to the pen just the same."—Case and Comment.

DID NOT UNDERSTAND THE SIGNAL SYSTEM

Operator's Excuse For Deadly Wreck Near Cairo.

Cairo, Ill., Sept. 19.—Four men were killed and two severely injured in a head-on collision between Mobile & Ohio and Iron Mountain freight trains, nine miles north of Cairo, in a dense fog which obscured the headlights. Operator Charles E. Clark, who is blamed for the wreck, is under arrest. He only went on duty an hour before the wreck occurred. The regular operator was sick and he was sent to relieve him. He claims he did not understand the signal system.

The dead: John Crowsnoe, fireman; Claude Rollins, engineer; Wesley A. Stevenson, brakeman; an unknown negro. All except the negro lived in Jackson, Tenn.

Engineer A. Burguf of St. Louis and Conductor F. A. Buchminster of Chester, Ill., were critically injured.

A UNION OF THE BLUE AND GRAY

Significant Incident Marks Grand Army Meeting.

A NEW ERA OF GOOD FEELING

Commander-in-Chief Van Sant Clashed Hands With General Hilary A. Herbert, Noted Confederate, Pledging the Time When There Would Be a Great Reunion of the Wearers of the Blue and the Wearers of the Gray.

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 19.—The forty-fourth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, which had its formal opening here today, may be the last. The commander-in-chief, General Samuel Van Sant, declared that he hoped to attend a great national encampment next year, when survivors of the civil war, whether they be of Lee's or Grant's, Longstreet's or Sherman's army, should rally around one great campfire and hold forth as brothers and Americans in peace and harmony.

Hardly had the applause following these words died away, than a Confederate soldier, General Hilary A. Herbert, formerly secretary of the navy in the Cleveland cabinet and during the war a member of the staff of General Robert E. Lee, arose and declared that the words of the commander-in-chief sounded the advent of an era of good feeling never before equalled. As a climax to his address he grasped the Stars and Stripes and said that under that banner he wanted to see the heroes of the north and the south united. He extended his hand to General Van Sant and said that he and many of his brothers in the south would work for the great reunion of the blue and the gray. There are about 75,000 veterans here.

Today they did little more than register and troop up and down the board walk seeking out old campmates and the friends of the war times. The gallant Philadelphia brigade held a reunion Sunday on the Steeplechase pier, and it was there that General Van Sant and General Herbert advocated the grand reunion of the G. A. R. and the Confederate Veterans. Every train is bringing more of the vets. All the famous war songs and battle yells are being rehearsed. The women of the G. A. R. are holding meetings every day and tonight will give General Van Sant a reception at Had-don hall.

TO TALK THINGS OVER

A Three-Days' Cabinet Meeting Will Be Held at White House.

Washington, Sept. 19.—A three-day cabinet session at the White House will begin a week from today. It has been learned that the Ballinger case will not be taken up by the cabinet. The president, it is said, regards the case as absolutely settled, as far as he is concerned, until the majority members of the investigating committee report. It is doubtful if the president would accept Secretary Ballinger's resignation now, even if it were offered.

INDIANA MARKED ON FIELD AT ANTIETAM

Dedication of Monument to Hoosier Dead.

Antietam, Md., Sept. 19.—Surrounded by distinguished army officers and cheered by 100 or more Indiana veterans, Governor Marshall Saturday unveiled the handsome monument erected by the state of Indiana on the Antietam battleground in memory of her sons who there lost their lives forty-eight years ago to the day. Following the dedication a majority of the Indians proceeded to Atlantic City for the national encampment of the G. A. R. Governor and Mrs. Marshall, together with the officers of the Indiana national guard, who composed the governor's staff, went to New York city.

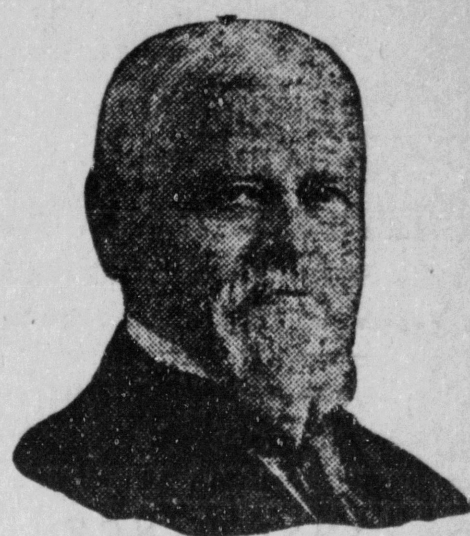

The Indiana monument is one of the finest and most handsome on the Antietam battleground. Practically all the states have honored their soldier dead, but none has surpassed Indiana in the character and beauty of its memorial. Universal commendation was heard, and the commissioners, representing as they do the five Indiana regiments which participated in the battle, were cordially congratulated.

The granite shaft, fifty feet high, is erected on one of the bloodiest knolls of this bloodiest of all American battlefields. It overlooks the famous Dunkard church, about which the battle waged thickest, and commands a view of the historic "Bloody Lane," renowned for the quantity of human blood poured out upon it.

Inasmuch as Saturday marked the forty-eighth anniversary of the famous battle, all Antietam joined in Indiana's celebration. Practically every house in Sharpsburg was decorated and a holiday spirit was everywhere manifested.

NEW YORK DEMOCRATS FIXING FOR THE FRAY

Upstate Primaries Will Be Held Tomorrow.

New York, Sept. 19.—For the Democratic state convention at Rochester on Sept. 29, the primaries are to be held in the upstate counties and cities tomorrow. There is the greatest eagerness on the part of all Democrats from all parts of the state to know the real condition of Mayor Gaynor. In many counties of the state Mayor Gaynor appears to be the most popular candidate for the Democrats to nominate at Rochester. The information concerning Gaynor's actual condition differs, one version being that he is getting along well, is sturdy physically and mentally, and that he would be able to undertake an arduous campaign. The other report is that Mayor Gaynor improves very slowly and that he could not think of entering upon the strife of a political campaign. Gaynor, it is believed, will, either before the convention assemblies or while it is in session, make known definitely his own desires. As it is, many Democrats are speaking up for the nomination of Representative James S. Havens of Rochester, who defeated George W. Aldridge in the special election for congress in the Monroe district last spring. The Monroe county Democrats are to present Mr. Havens to the convention as their man for governor.

Edward M. Shepard of Brooklyn will have support and possibly there will be delegates for Supreme Court Justice Gerard, Alton B. Parker, D. Cady Herrick, Representative Sulzer, Thos. M. Osborne and Supreme Court Justice Charles Frank Brown. No Democrat in the regular organizations connected with the league has the slightest idea what William R. Hearst will do on his arrival in this country on Oct. 1. The Independence League, Hearst's organization, has filed notice that it will nominate a complete state ticket. Mr. Hearst is unalterably opposed to Gaynor for governor, and his recent cabled interviews from Europe have left the regular Democrats in the dark as to his connection or non-connection with Colonel Roosevelt.

NEGROES IN TERROR

The Old Ku Klux Klan Has Been Revived in Mississippi.

Buena Vista, Miss., Sept. 19.—Ike Dahmer, a negro, is the latest victim of the Ku Klux, which has been revived. His body was found in the thicket of Sucatonchee creek bottom. He left home with a wagon and never returned. The team was found in the road, but nothing was heard of Dahmer until the body was discovered. There were several bullet holes in his body.

The persons that killed him cut the skin on the top of the head and had taken all the skin off the forehead and face, leaving the body difficult to identify. Other mutilations were made. The head had been burned, too. Negroes are in terror as in the old days of the Ku Klux.

The engine did not work and she drifted into an eddy near Niagara university, and there the boat was pulled ashore and Larsen helped out.

Indianapolis, Sept. 19.—Mrs. Lester F. Benson, 2210 Park avenue, was brutally attacked by a negro on Twenty-second street, near Park avenue, and after being knocked down and kicked, her purse was snatched from her. The purse contained about $105. The negro escaped.

DEMOCRATS FORGET THEIR PROMISES

Laboring Men in Indiana Given Severe Treatment By Last House of Representatives.

AWAKENED TO SITUATION NOW

Majority of Beneficial Labor Laws Have Been Enacted by the Republicans.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 20.—Disinterested people who have listened to the trend of affairs in Indiana this year say it is remarkable the way the working people have lined up in favor of the Republican ticket. It seems from all that can be learned that labor all over the state has made the cause of Senator Beveridge and the Republican party this year its cause also, and that indications are that the 80,000 union labor voters as well as the many other thousands, of unorganized laboring men will cast their votes as to make them count for Republican success.

Union labor has not forgotten the cruel manner in which they were double crossed two years ago by the Democrats. They recall with bitter memory the fact that two years ago in the campaign the Democrats promised labor that they would enact legislation that would bring relief to the laboring people of the state. The Democrats promised every thing that labor asked. The result was that many working men were cheated into voting the Democratic ticket, depending on that party to redeem its promises in the Legislature.

But when the Legislature met these promises were all forgotten. The Democrats absolutely refused to carry out a single promise it made to labor. It has caught their votes and then it turned them down. Labor found itself double crossed in the most complete and effective manner. Once again the Democratic party proved by its own act that it is anything but the friend to the working men.

This year the Democratic party started out to work the same old confidence game on labor, but it has found that it cannot carry through its wicked scheme again. The laboring people refuse to listen to it. They have tried it and they have been disappointed. They bit once but they will not bite again. Just what labor thinks of the situation is well shown by a well written pamphlet prepared by about a dozen of the leaders of organized labor in Indiana and signed by them setting forth the peridy of the Democratic party in its attitude toward the working classes. This pamphlet shows the excellent record made by Senator Beveridge on legislation in which labor is interested. It shows that Senator Beveridge has always stood up for labor and that he has fought its battles on many occasions.

Copies of this pamphlet are being circulated all over the state, and those who have watched the progress of the campaign declare that it is opening the eyes of many laboring men who heretofore have placed their faith in the Democratic party. Not only this, but organized labor is making a fight on Lew Ellingham, of Decatur, Democratic nominee for Secretary of State, because it is charged that he has been unfair to organized labor. The charge is made in writing by Lawrence M. Tester, a Muncie printer and member of the Typographical Union, that Ellingham has refused to recognize the union in employing printers in his newspapers office at Decatur. It is charged that he refused to give the union a hearing when it was sought to organize a union in Decatur. It is said also that he employed a printer who had rattled in an eight hour strike at Dayton, O.

The case against Ellingham has been taken up by the Typographical Union, and an appeal is being made to all the organized labor voters of the state to vote against him because of his unfair attitude toward the union.

The nomination of Ellingham so soon after the refusal of the Democrats to keep their promises to labor in the Legislature has aroused the indignation of organized labor, and the result is sure to be felt at the polls in November.

To Make Things Hum.

The Columbus Republican commenting on the North Vernon congressional convention says:

John H. Kamman, the Seymour attorney who was nominated as the candidate for congress, has a platform upon which any candidate might feel proud to stand, and he is going to make things hum in the Fourth before the campaign is over.

THE ISLAND FOR HEIKE

Sugar Trust Official Sentenced to Eight Months' Imprisonment.

New York, Sept. 20.—Charles R. Heike, former secretary and treasurer of the American Sugar Refining company, has been sentenced to eight months' imprisonment on Blackwell's island, and $5,000 by Federal Judge Martin. Heike was convicted in the recent sugar fraud cases. A stay was granted pending an appeal.

Heike's sentence is the culminating point in the federal government's prosecution of American Sugar Refining company officials and employees growing out of the underweighing frauds on the Williamsburg docks of the trust, brought to light by Richard Parr's famous raid on the docks in 1907.
